

LEWANDOWSKY, STEPHAN

Professor Stephan Lewandowsky is a cognitive scientist at the University of Bristol and the recipient of numerous awards and honours, including a Discovery Outstanding Researcher Award from the Australian Research Council, and a Humboldt Research Award from the Humboldt Foundation in Germany. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Social Science (UK) and a Fellow of the Association of Psychological Science. He was elected to the Leopoldina (German national academy of sciences) in 2022. His research currently focuses on the persistence of misinformation and spread of “fake news” in society. He has published more than 240 scholarly articles, chapters, and books. He is currently funded by the European Research Council, the EU’s Horizon 2020 programme, and the Volkswagen Foundation, among others.

DOWLING, ANDREW

Andrew Dowling is Reader in Spanish History at Cardiff University, United Kingdom. His scholarship on Catalonia and Spain, straddles historical sociology, the theory of nationalism and contemporary history, to provide a deeper explanation of Catalonia and the secessionist movement that has emerged there. In 2023 he edited the Routledge Handbook of Spanish History. Amongst his main publications are Catalonia: A New History (Routledge 2022); The Rise of Catalan Independence: Spain’s Territorial Crisis (Routledge 2018); and Catalonia Since the Spanish Civil War: Reconstructing the Nation (Sussex Academic Press 2012).

LO CASCIO, PAOLA

Paola Lo Cascio, BA in Political Science from the University of La Sapienza (Rome) and holds a PhD in Contemporary History from the University of Barcelona. She has been a postdoctoral researcher at the Instituto de Ciencias Sociais of the University of Lisbon (ICS-UL, 2015-2017), and is currently Associate Professor at the University of Barcelona. She has been a visiting researcher at the University of Cambridge (2011) and visiting professor at the Università La Sapienza in Rome (2013). She is vice-director of the Centre d’Estudis Històrics Internacionals of the Universitat de Barcelona. Her researches focuses on the political, cultural and institutional history of Spain in the 20th century, and especially on Catalan conservative nationalism. Selection of her publications: Nacionalisme i Autogovern (Afers, 2008); “El pujolismo entre gestión y cultura política. Some interpretative notes (1980-2003)” (Ayer, 2020); Anatomía de unos gobiernos independentistas (Historia del Presente, 2020), “Il doppio 89 del nazionalismo catalano” (Rivista Storica Italiana, 2022).

MAKHORTYKH, MYKOLA

Mykola Makhortykh is an Alfred Landecker lecturer at the Institute of Communication and Media Science. In his research, Mykola focuses on politics- and history-centred information behaviour in online environments and how it is affected by the information retrieval systems, such as search engines and recommender systems. To achieve this goal, he combines traditional social science methods (e.g., content analysis and focus groups) with novel computational approaches (e.g., deep learning and agent-based testing). His other research interests include trauma and memory studies, armed conflict reporting, disinformation and computational propaganda research, cybersecurity and critical security studies, and bias in information retrieval systems.

MALYARENKO, TETYANA

Dr. Tetyana Malyarenko is a Professor of International Security and Jean Monnet Professor of European Security at the National University Odessa Law Academy, Ukraine, and a Humboldt Fellow at the University of Regensburg, Germany. She is the founder and director of the Ukrainian Institute for Crisis Management and Conflict Resolution, a Ukrainian think tank aiming to promote interdisciplinary research, research-led teaching, and evidence-based advice for policy-makers on crisis management and conflict resolution in Ukraine and beyond. Her main research areas include contemporary conflict and conflict management, meditation and transitional justice.

O'TOOLE, FINTAN

Fintan O'Toole is a columnist with The Irish Times and advising editor of The New York Review of Books. He is the winner of the Robert Silvers Prize for Journalism, the Orwell Prize and the European Press Prize. He is currently working on the official biography of Seamus Heaney. Born in Dublin in 1958, he is a member of the Royal Irish Academy and an honorary international member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He taught at Princeton where he was Professor of Irish Letters. His most recent book, We Don't Know Ourselves: A Personal History of Ireland Since 1958 was named Book of the Year in the An Post Irish Book Awards and as one of the ten best books of 2022 by the New York Times.

ROOZENBEEK, JON

Jon Roozenbeek is an incoming Lecturer in Psychology and Security at the Department of War Studies at King's College London. His research focuses broadly on the psychology of (digital) media effects, propaganda, and information warfare. His doctoral research (2020, University of Cambridge) focused on media discourse during the Donbas War. He is the author of two forthcoming books, both with Cambridge University Press: The Psychology of Misinformation and Propaganda and Ideology in the Russian-Ukrainian War.

SUITER, JANE

Jane Suiter is a Professor of Political Communication and director of the Institute for Future Media, Democracy and Society at Dublin City University. Her research focus is on the information environment in the public sphere and, in particular, on scaling up deliberation and tackling disinformation. She has been involved in various research and oversight capacities at the Irish Citizens' Assembly (2012-2022) and was a founder member of We the Citizens (2011), Ireland's first deliberative experiment. Jane was awarded an IRC Laureate in 2022 for COMDEL Examining the Potential of Communicative Deliberation for Climate Action. She has published in 30 plus journals including Science, International Journal of Political Science, Electoral Studies, Politics and the International Journal of Communication and is the author of three books including Reimagining Democracy: Lessons in Deliberative Democracy from the Irish Frontline published by Cornell University Press and Disinformation and Manipulation in Digital Media with Dr Eileen Culloty.

SZOSTEK, JOANNA

Dr Joanna Szostek is a senior lecturer in Political Communication at the University of Glasgow. She is also an associate fellow of the Russia and Eurasia Programme at Chatham House, The Royal Institute of International Affairs. Her research investigates the media's role in relations between states, with a special focus on Ukraine and Russia. This research has been published in leading peer-reviewed journals, including Perspectives on Politics, The International Journal of Press/Politics, New Media and Society, Post-Soviet Affairs and European Security. Joanna holds a doctorate in Politics from the University of Oxford and her professional experience includes many years of living and working in Russia and Ukraine.

TOLZ, VERA

Vera Tolz is Sir William Mather Professor of Russian Studies at the University of Manchester, UK. She has published widely on various aspects of Russian nationalism and the relationship between intellectuals and the state in the imperial, Soviet and post-Soviet periods. She has also conducted research on Soviet and Russian political communication strategies. She recently completed an AHRC-funded collaborative research project on broadcasting and audience engagement strategies of RT (formerly Russia Today). Her new co-authored book Russia, Misinformation and the Liberal Order: RT as a Populist Pariah is forthcoming with Cornell University Press this year. She is currently pursuing a collaborative AHRC-funded project '(Mis)translating Deceit: Disinformation as a Translingual, Discursive Dynamic'.